GOLF QUEST SHORT GAME SCHOOL

The short game makes up at least 60 to 70 percent of the shots in a given round of golf. Yet most people spend very little time practicing their short game or learning proper technique. This program will include work with pitch shorts (full, partial, lob or flop shots, uneven lies), sand play (greenside bunker shots, medium and long bunker shorts, uneven lies, firm v. soft sand, different club selection, buried lies and fried eggs) and more. The Golf Quest facility has a large putting green with chipping areas, a pitching green with both artificial and natural grass hitting areas, a greenside bunker and a fairway bunker. The newly constructed natural grass hitting area is ideal for practicing pitch shorts from fairway lies, from the deep rough, as well as a variety of uphill, downhill, and side hill lies. There is a maximum of 6 people per class so that students will receive more individual attention.
